“THINKING THURSDAYS: IIHed RESEARCH SEMINAR SERIES”

Do you find academic research tedious, boring and too hard? Do you think research is only for those who use big flowery language and academic disciplinary jargons?

What academic research and writing is all about? What is expected from a PhD thesis and what are the expectations of internationally peer-reviewed academic journals?

Come join us for the inaugural “THINKING THURSDAYS: IIHed Research Seminar Series” on
THE RESEARCH AND WELL-WRITTEN THESIS: FOUNDATIONAL SKILLS FOR ALL RESEARCHERS

Presenter: Dr. Mousumi Mukherjee

Assistant Director (IIHed) & Associate Editor, Routledge journal- Diaspora, Indigenous and Minority Education

Date: Thursday 30th March, 2017 | Time: 1:30 pm

Venue: IIHed Seminar Room- T1 Second Floor

Researchers across JGU and outside JGU are invited to make presentations on their doctoral thesis, postdoctoral projects, nationally and internationally peer-reviewed articles/book chapters/books based on their empirical research.

Please send abstracts (not more than 300-500 words) for presentations to mmukherjee@jgu.edu.in with “THINKING THURSDAYS” in the subject line and title of presentation, research questions, research methodology (method of data collection & modes of analysis) and findings in the e.mail. Please also encourage your colleagues across different schools, research centres on campus at JGU, colleagues within India and abroad to send proposals.
